ENJOY YOUR VISIT TO HART COUNTY. PLEASE DRIVE SLOWLY!

First-time visitors to Hart County, Kentucky, are usually surprised to see a horse-drawn buggy hitched to a post in downtown or slowly moving along one of the back roads. It is a scene that locals now take for granted. Members of the old Order Amish faith began moving into the area during the late 1980s, many of them from Geauga County, Ohio.

Approximately 200 families now live throughout the county, with the largest population in the Logsdon Valley/Forestville communities. Several Amish businesses are scattered throughout the county, especially in the Cub Run area in western Hart County. Their businesses include greenhouses, bakeries, window and lawn furniture manufacturing, meat processing, sawmills, salvage grocery, and general merchandise stores. Several families also grow tomatoes and other vegetables to sell to large canneries and at roadside market stands.

PLEASE NOTE: While the Amish community welcomes customers to their businesses, they ask that you not photograph the people; please honor that request. You may want to call ahead to confirm the business is open as they sometimes close for special occasions. Most businesses do take credit cards, but you may want to take along some cash as an ATM machine may not be nearby.

This map features a few of the businesses that offer goods that might interest tourists and is produced by Horse Cave/Hart County Tourism. Other Amish-owned businesses in the county that include Agriculture, Buggy Shops, Building Materials and Repair, Carpentry and Construction, Equine, Sawmills and Logging are listed in the Hart County Chamber of Commerce's 2021 Directory of Amish Owned Businesses in Hart County and are available for $12.50. Please contact the Chamber office at 270.524.2892 for sales locations.

NOTE: These businesses are all closed on Sundays.
